FIRST LOOK: MATCA, TRANSYLVANIA

Transylvanian hotel Matca, which translates into English as 'queen of the bees', will open its doors in Autumn 2023, fusing authentic Transylvanian style with contemporary elegance.

Comprising 16 guestrooms and suites, alongside ten private villas, the new hotel is perched on a hilltop, overlooking the Bucegi and Piatra Craiului mountains.

Quintessentially Transylvanian, Matca's guestrooms are situated within two farmhouses typical of the location, each one with an inner courtyard that will give access to the property's deluxe rooms and junior suites.

Food and beverage offerings at Matca will, naturally, offer a taste of Transylvania. At Stup, which comprises both indoor and outdoor seating, guests will explore the region's culinary offerings, sourced from local artisans and drawn from ancient recipes. The restaurant will also serve up a selection of predominantly Romanian wines.

Nectar, the hotel's bar, will meanwhile offer guests a selection of cocktails and local beverages, which they can enjoy in the venue itself, in the living room, or in the property's gardens.

Ambrozie spa will be an additional spot in which to recline, with views of the surrounding natural landscape and various treatment rooms.
